

Extract of another letter, dated Dan River, February 18th and 19th 1781.

The enemy, after a halt of three days, are retreating in the direction of Hillsborough. Our force, from large collections of militia, is become formidable. I should particularize, but duty calls me on. We are just after the enemy.